HOAGLAND'S NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!

W. E. COOPER

HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets
He respectfully refers to the following
CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. B. Hoag and we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used

It fastens without bolt or screw and is therefore easily and speedily separated It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant and is convenient safe and secure

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use and with small expense We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent heretofore considered the best in use

William Cullen Bryant

A New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial thus speaks of this distinguished man

I had the pleasure lately of hearing the discourse of the venerable poet on his no less venerable friend the lately deceased scholar and man of affairs Julian C Verplanck It was an admirable sketch of the life and times of a cultivated, honorable public spirited gentleman of the old school—a man who won a distinguished name in the earlier days of American literature when Paulding Irving and Cooper were appearing on the horizon who for many years served his country and his native State of New York and who when he recently died at the age of eighty four, was still active and efficient in the responsible position of President of the Immigration Bureau Bryant spoke with great feeling of Verplanck, who had been his cherished friend for over half a century and the discourse as a literary production was worthy of its eminent subject and its illustrious author

Bryant himself if I mistake not is yet some ten years younger than Verplanck was at the time of his death It would be hard to imagine a more attractive figure than he presented as he stood on the platform surrounded by the hoary headed gentlemen and scholars of the Historical Society—a class of men whom nobody in America excepting perhaps Donn Piatt would ever think of looking upon with any other feeling than that of veneration and reverence. In person Bryant is small and slender his features are well expressed and regular his head is large noble and intellectual his locks and his beard are white as snow, he is exceedingly graceful in his manner and highly vivacious in his movements Those who are acquainted with him know that he still possesses a marvel of freshness of spirit and feeling a geniality and friendliness of nature that renders him as attractive in society as he is illustrious in literature He is fond of social gayety and enjoys the pleasures of life with as keen a zest as ever He has the good fortune to be a rich poet but neither his wealth nor his fame has made him in the slightest degree egotistical or vain he is as modest and unselfish as he is light hearted and open souled In conversation he is singularly happy, bringing forth treasures new and old, if occasion requires but never obtruding his learning or attempting anything like display of his genius Even those who have been delighted with his translation of the Iliad may not be aware of the scope and precision of his Greek scholarship It is not merely that he thoroughly comprehends the Greek language its structure and its laws that he has become possessed of the very genius and life the soul and thought of the Greeks. It is certain that it was not through the Greek that he received his love of nature and her forms of beauty, for the Greeks themselves did not possess the sentiment for nature that appears in his earlier as well as in his later poems But there is no doubt that his artistic perceptions have been largely developed through his Greek studies It . . . find that the noble and delicate sentiment . . . and the high . . . which gave sweetness and light to the poems he wrote more than fifty years ago . . . shed their new luster . . . life . . . morning glory which unhappily disappears from most men's lives with the advance of time

It is in the matter of politics alone that Bryant is somewhat astringent In regard to the . . . of government and administration he has always been a Jeffersonian Democrat During the last twenty five years he has belonged to the anti slavery and progressive school of politics and after fighting the battle of the old Barnburners in the Evening Post of which he is editor he joined the Republican party with which he has acted to the present day Under all circumstances however, he has been a determined Free Trader and he can never touch on the subject either in an editorial article or at a public meeting, without displaying deep conviction intensity of feeling, and something that looks very like acerbity toward the opposite party Not long since I heard the venerable poet branch out on this subject at a semi political banquet at which Greeley was present—with whom he has long been on personal terms that can be called anything but affectionate—and it must be said that there was an astringency in his language that required to be tempered by his humor and smile and by the uproarious applause of the whole table It is not surprising that sometime after this event Greeley took occasion to say in a prominent part of the Tribune that he considered Bryant's poems quite inferior to those of another American poet, who in politics is a Protectionist

Bryant enjoys good health He is a great walker both in the city and the country He may frequently be found rambling through the woods near his estate at Roslyn and he may often be seen taking long walks upon Broadway and the avenues He will weary out his companions in those pedestrian exercises and the other day he left a muscular friend exhausted by the way, while he pushed onward fresh and lively as ever His litheness and vigor are really surprising If you would not offend him, do not assume that he has begun to grow old, and in particular do not attempt to assist him up stairs or into a carriage on the theory that age needs your assistance

It is more than half a century since Bryant gave to the world that grand poem Thanatopsis which has come more widely and deeply appreciated by his countrymen than any other American poem He was the young man of budding genius . . . Verplanck . . . obscure literary . . . Now after a long and active life in literature . . . has just completed . . . translation of the [illegible] . . . works of genius . . . Homer . . . poet of the ages . . . poet of to-day . . . [illegible] . . . out which he believes to be . . . display of . . . Homeric genius . . . may feel disposed . . . work . . . lation as it . . .

The House of Representatives has . . . withdraw . . . Navy . . . per cent . . . pay which . . . Welles saw fit to . . . utter defiance of law That is a step in the right direction Now let the House take care . . . that its vote be not defied by the Navy Department as the law for years has been

The Steamer City of Boston

FEAR FROM AN ICEBERG

The following interesting letter appears in the New York Evening Post of May 21

In your fourth edition of last evening I notice an extract taken from a Paterson paper which was intended to suggest the probability of the City of Boston having taken fire from the heating of the journals of the machinery caused by the increased speed due to the substitution of a two bladed for a three bladed screw

As many of the friends of those on board may feel additional anguish from the fact that their friends have suffered the dread terrors of fire on board a ship at sea it may be as well to show how ridiculous the conclusions of the paper quoted are In the first place the speed at which a screw is driven depends on the pitch or distance the screw travels ahead in one revolution and not upon the number of blades, the resisting surface being divided into two, three or four portions —according to the judgment of the engineer two blades being used generally where the vessels are dependent principally on sails, as affording less resistance when the blades are placed perpendicularly and the vessel driven by sail alone Again, the shaft and all the bearings of an engine are run in metal, and have no wood whatever about them, and are never under any circumstances, allowed to run above the temperature at which water evaporates—212 degrees for before reaching the point at which the driest wood ignites they would seize and bind in the journals of a large shaft as to stop the engine

The probable fate of the "City of Boston" has been an encounter with an iceberg One will naturally say that the captain being careful would reduce the speed of his ship when the depression of the thermometer would show that there were icebergs in the neighborhood Suppose then that the speed had been reduced to ten knots an hour, let us see with what force the City of Boston would strike an iceberg of sufficient magnitude to remain practically immovable when the vessel struck it.

The "City of Boston" probably weighed one thousand tons, water in boilers say fifty tons passengers baggage etc., fifty tons freight eight hundred tons, making in all one thousand nine hundred tons At a speed of ten knots an hour she would move seventeen feet in one second which would give the vessel a momentum or force, with which she would strike, of thirty two thousand three hundred tons, a force sufficient to crush in her bows for many feet. Besides this let one imagine for a moment the effect upon all ponderable bodies partially secured to the vessel The vessel suddenly stopped boats, masts furniture passengers everything about the vessel would virtually be driven ahead at a speed of seventeen feet a second, the boilers would probably be loosened from their fastenings, the masts would be broken off the boats would be carried away terror . . . which the shrieks of affrighted and wounded passengers would heighten The vessel would sink immediately no boats could be lowered no provision be made to save a single person Should she have taken fire, there would have been at least a short time to lower boats and prepare rafts on which some would have remained long enough afloat to have been picked up by steamers or sailing vessels passing over the same route.

A long enough time has now elapsed to have heard from almost every port for which a steamer or sailing vessel on that route would have sailed and hope for the safe arrival of the City of Boston has almost died out even in the minds of the most sanguine

Multiplying Votes in New York City

The following from the New York Tribune of May 20 is suggestive of the manner which votes are manufactured in New York City by the Democratic managers

The Tenth District of the VIth Ward contains . . . small blocks beginning at Canal street and Broadway running along Canal to Baxter down Baxter to White thence to Elm thence to Walker . . . down . . . to Broadway The four blocks between Canal and Walker are devoted to stores and manufactories There is not a dwelling house . . . them possibly a score of . . . may live in the buildings as keepers . . . The block between Walker White, Elm and Centre has the Dispensary, the Arsenal and a . . . factory upon it, and cannot have . . . than a . . . small houses at the most and a population of less than 300 The remaining block, Centre to Baxter and White to Walker contains several factories about 20 small brick houses of two and a half stories, and as many tumble-down wooden rookeries very small and almost uninhabitable This Tenth District with the Ninth and Eleventh, is a portion of the IIId Assembly District and the three Districts together have (according to the official statement of the Supervisors Don . . . Sept 9 1868) an aggregate population of 4,511, of which the Tenth District cannot possibly have over 1 600—we don't believe it has 800—Yet this little District is returned as having polled 1 884 votes of which 50 were Republicans and 1 834 were Democratic There are not 300 legal voters residing in the District—probably not 200 The reader can draw his own conclusions

The Census

About this time as the almanac says look out for the census taker It is the duty of the Assistant Marshals to visit every house and it is their . . . to make respectful treatment and . . . They will be pretty inquisitive . . . as is a physician when applied to by a patient suffering from some intricate or obscure disease and he means no harm by their inquiries The information they obtain will not . . . purposes of taxation or in any way to the prejudice of the individual No one will ever learn from the census books the state of any man's private business Everything goes into a general aggregate. The Government wants to find out how many people are in the country the amount and value of our products and a great many other things which are necessary to be ascertained in order to make an intelligent estimate of the material progress and condition of the country People need not fear to inform the census takers in regard to their business affairs or to fill up the blanks the law prescribes any more than to send an important private telegram to their friends Every person concerned in collecting census returns is placed under the strictest obligation not to divulge any information acquired during the exercise of his duties Let every one therefore answer the questions frankly candidly and without reluctance —San Francisco Call

An interesting passage at arms is going on between Mr Beecher and Dr Bellows the latter insisting that Mr Beecher is a Unitarian and Mr Beecher retorting that Dr Bellows is orthodox Each recognizes a strawberry mark which the other disclaims At the meeting of the Hudson River Unitarian Conference Dr Bellows said Beecher may say what he will—the general tone of his preaching does not differ materially from what we wish to promulgate I want no better Unitarian than he is The orthodox preaching to day is so great an improvement on what it used to be that much labor is taken out of our hands To which Mr Beecher's organ the Christian Union, replies that in thus speaking Dr Bellows comes to the orthodox ground and he must allow us to rejoice over this new testimony to the power of the truth upon the human soul But he ought to shake off bad company There were some men in the conference who it is generally believed would scorn to be called Christians The . . . is too small for them It does not comprehend all the truths they have found . . . Christ was only one round in the ladder of progress they have stepped on him . . . higher He did very well as an . . . but oaks are able to bear acorns of their own and . . . not need to look back to their ancestral germ Now such company will injure Dr. Bellows faith while yet it is . . . unconfirmed

Chief Justice Gilpin of Delaware says that the . . . law the State ever had was almost a literal transcript of one framed by William Penn and that the Legislature by its persistent tinkering has been steadily making it worse for the last thirty years

CURRENT NOTES

The expenses of the War Department have been reduced nearly fourteen hundred thousand dollars And yet the Democratic organs will have it that the Administration is not economical!

German astronomers assert that two stars—one in the constellation of Corona, and the other the Ethe Argus (generally marked on astronomical charts by the Greek letter H)—have taken fire

One of the best speeches made in either House of Congress this session was made the other day by Senator Ramsey of Minnesota. He said Let us quit talking and commence voting Only this and nothing more

A New Hampshire woman went into hysterics when she found that a telegram to her husband was worded thus "The little darlings are doing well and are looking quite pretty Please send their board money She felt relieved when she learned on his return home that the telegram referred to a couple of small dogs

Another rebellion has broken out in the Argentine Confederation and the Government at last accounts was hurrying forward troops to the scene of action, which is in the province of Entre Rios Some fighting had occurred, but no decisive results are reported. Wanted a King The Spaniards are again at sea in regard to a subject for Kingly honors It would seem that in a country like Spain a sufficiency of men would be found willing to accept the glittering bauble of sovereignty There are plenty of them no doubt, but it appears they are not available Espartero, who was named for the vacant throne with great enthusiasm a few days ago, is not charmed with the idea of wearing, in his old age the uneasy head gear, and declines the honor with thanks, so that the work of hunting up a candidate must needs be entered upon again

Gen Rosecrans' Scheme

Washington dispatches have made vague allusions to the Mexican scheme which Gen Rosecrans is trying to get before Congress Don Piatt has interviewed him on the subject, and this is his account of the matter as explained by Rosecrans

I made up my mind that what Mexico needed was, first, a railroad system, to make her a real material nation, as the material and nervous system makes the human body a living man As she stands, she is a series of disconnected provinces, without more than patriotism and the name of nationality

Secondly, she needs a currency equal to the needs of her population, and that she does not now possess In the circulating medium of Mexico, gold and silver coin exists in a very inadequate supply, not exceeding eight or ten dollars per capita; and out of this, almost at the limits of barbarism is taken the principal export of the country, because the producing and consuming population chiefly inhabit the tablelands, whence only the most costly and concentrated products bear transport by present modes Thus, from a typhoid patient, every conducta draws a portion of the best blood Can the patient live unless the treatment is changed?

I have made it my purpose to organize, with American capital, a National Bank for for Mexico and to set on foot such a general railway system for her as was made for France during the reign of Louis Phillipe. But to make these capitalists feel safe and secure, I want the General Government to incorporate them as American concerns, so that they can have flesh and blood and assert themselves with the feeling that they will be as well protected, where they are right, as England protects any of her maritime or mining corporations in foreign parts. Up to the present time the United States has never given a corporation respectable standing abroad, and while English capital is invested in every part of the globe the American has no moral support at all I am sure that the present government of Mexico is disposed to give us every protection, for about the close of May last I wrote a personal letter to President Juarez in which I declared that the great moneyed, commercial tax paying interests of of the United States must be inclined to favor them, telling Mr Juarez that should the Mexican government and people properly show themselves in favor of an industrial immigration I believed that an appeal for aid, in capital and skill could be successfully made to the great chiefs of capital commerce and agriculture in our county Therefore I am here to have myself and associates interpolated under act of Congress, and with this feeling, that we are recognized by our government, we expect, without any favors or subsidy, to start two humane and gigantic enterprises in the Mexican republic

Observations Upon Alaska

Readers we think will surely agree with us that the weather is hot enough to justify something about Alaska.

Our materials on this occasion are supplied by a book just published, entitled "Alaska and its Resources." The author is William H. Dall, who has probably explored Alaska more thoroughly than any other American. His official connection with the Western Union Telegraph Expedition, as Director of its Scientific Corps in 1868, gave him such facilities as no explorer before him had ever been favored with, and the New York Tribune, in its criticism of the book, thinks that he has made an honest and earnest use of the time and means at his disposal. His explorations of the Yukon Territory and the Yukon River are the most valuable, and at the same time entertaining. Few are aware that this Yukon is a river about 2,000 miles in length, and navigable by steamboats for three-fourths its length, while, in many places, its width is so great that one bank is invisible from the other. Above what are called the Ramparts, including the islands, the river is, in some places, 20 miles wide. "By its size, and the important changes which it is always bringing about in Behring Sea, it is fairly entitled to rank as one of the largest rivers in the world. It is larger than the Ganges or the Orinoco, about the size of the Danube or the La Plata, and belongs to that great family of Northern rivers of which the Obi, Lena, Saskatchewan, and Mackenzie are the most prominent members." Into this mighty stream, on either side, empty many large rivers, draining countries as yet unexplored, and whose inhabitants and resources are known only by uncertain report and incidental and suggestive means.

This book is one that will make Mr. Seward happy; for it shows that Alaska is not by any means the icy, barren, worthless region which many describe it to be. In regard to the climate and general resources, the author furnishes this summary:

> While in the Yukon Territory we cannot look for self-supporting agricultural districts, nor reasonably expect any one to obtain a subsistence by farming alone; still, the settler called there to develop the resources of the country, be they lumber, fish, or furs, may have milk in his tea, and fresh vegetables on his table, if he possesses the energy and knowledge to make the most of his opportunities. It will not be necessary for him to rely on the products of the chase alone, if he will but take the necessary care to provide shelter for his cattle, and to cut and gather for their winter fodder the perennial grasses which cover the prairies and lowlands.
>
> In the Aleutian District is situated the larger proportion of the arable land of the Territory of Alaska. In this and in the northern part of the Sitkan District the climatic conditions are the most favorable for agriculture in the Territory. Their resemblance to the conditions which prevails in North-Western Scotland and its islands has been already demonstrated at length; and the capability of this district for agriculture may therefore be reasonably inferred. Oats and barley, possibly wheat and rye, may succeed on these islands. Their abundant capacity for producing root crops of good quality, except perhaps potatoes, may be considered as settled. That cattle will do well there, there is no doubt, and the Pacific slope may yet derive its best butter and cheese from the Aleutian and northern Sitkan District. Sheep, goats, and swine have not been thoroughly tried as yet, but the inference is that they also would succeed. Most of the berries found in the Yukon Territory are also common to the Aleutian District, and the climate, unless from its moisture, presents no obstacles to the success of some kind of fruit trees. It is to be hoped, at least, that some one will try the experiment.
>
> These islands, Kadiak, and Cook's Inlet, are unquestionably the best agricultural country in our new possessions.
>
> The resources of the southern Sitkan District lie apparently entirely in its timber. This is unquestionably needed on the Pacific coast, and a most valuable acquisition. No better lumbering district can be imagined, with water transportation everywhere, and mountain sides so steep that a slide, easily made, of the least valuable timber will conduct the logs directly to the water side. Some vegetables, in the future as in the past, will be raised, and some stock kept in this part of Alaska, but probably never to any great extent.
> Many reports may be found in circulation, even in official documents, in regard to Alaska, having very little foundation. While Massachusetts, since her settlement, has never exported any products of her soil except granite and ice, we may look in less than 250 years to receive from Alaska supplies of ship-timber, butter, cheese, wool, mutton and beef, and perhaps more palatable fruits may take the place of the well favored cranberries which have already found their way to San Francisco markets.

Mr. Dall shows conclusively that there is nothing mythical about the fish or fur trade of Alaska. The abundance of fish near the shores has been a wonder to all the navigators and explorers of those regions from the earliest records. Cod, salmon, halibut, herring, &c., &c., are apparently without limit. Statistics are not attainable, but a few approximate statements indicate what we may expect from the Northern Pacific coast. The "catch" of cod for the Autumn of 1869 is reported at 1,082,000 fish, which at the low average of 3½ pounds each (and the Pacific cod is a larger fish than his kin of the Atlantic coast) would be worth, at five cents per pound, $189,330 in gold; and yet this is but the "day of small things" in our Alaska experiences. In 1866, 10,000 gallons of cod liver oil were reported by the Shumagin fishermen. Fresh water fish include salmon, white fish, pike, &c. Dall estimates that the natives consume 12,000,000 salmon annually. At a single Russian fishing station 84,159 were obtained in one season, while at the fisheries at Kadiak and Cooke's Inlet, 465,000 salmon are caught annually. At the mouth of the Yukon River 2,000,000 salmon are reported as dried every season, and the true number is probably double. The whale fishery is also extensive, although it has not wholly recovered from the ravages of the pirate Shenandoah, and yet not fewer than 70 American whalers visit Behring Straits annually. Before the purchase of Alaska, refitting in any of the ports was practically forbidden. Important as is the fish trade, it has been overshadowed by the trade in furs. In a merely pecuniary point of view this is at present the chief business in the Territory. The sea-otter and the fur-seal are the two leading "skins."

Now that the election is over the repudiation organ of this city is getting bold again, and is beginning once more to disclose its real sentiments by publishing articles squinting strongly towards repudiation. In yesterday's issue it had a paragraph which sounded very much like a note of exultation over the action of the State in endorsing that doctrine. The repudiation organ will now doubtless return valorously to the combat with the Albany Democrat, from which it retreated some weeks ago through the fear of losing votes.

There will be something like four hundred Republican majority this side of the mountains. What the Democratic majority will be on the other side depends a good deal on the diligence of that party in cooking up the returns. They could make it go to twelve or fourteen hundred if necessary. The Legislature will probably be from six to nine Democratic.

Benton County.

CORVALLIS, June 8.—Benton county official: State ticket—Palmer, 29 majority; Wilson, 15; Elkins, 3; Hirsch and Kincaid, same as Elkins. Kelsay, Republican candidate for District Judge, 37 majority. Odell, for Prosecuting Attorney, 17. Republican Legislative ticket elected. Balance of the county ticket Republican, except the County Judge, Sheriff and Assessor.

Josephine and Jackson.

JACKSONVILLE, June 8.—Returns from Josephine county show that the Democrats have carried the State and county ticket by about forty majority.

Returns from all the precincts in Jackson county, except Goose Lake, have been received and give Fay, Democrat, about 45 majority over Martin, Fusion candidate for the State Senate. Goose Lake is expected to give a small majority for the People's ticket, but will not change the result. Democrats carry this county for the State ticket by about two hundred and fifty and elect every candidate on the county ticket except School Superintendent, Turner (Republican) having been elected by about 50 majority.

A heavy thunder storm passed over this valley this afternoon, accompanied by a refreshing shower.

Umatilla County.

It is reported that Umatilla county has given 245 majority Democratic. It is safe to say that the census taker, now on his travels will not be able to find that number of legal voters in the county.

Wasco County.

A dispatch received last evening states that Waldron, Republican, is certainly elected to the Legislature, and there is a chance that Rowland, the other Republican candidate, is elected also.

Yamhill County—Official.

For Congress, Wilson, 27 majority; Governor, Palmer, 16; Secretary, Elkins, 35; Treasurer, Hirsch, 30; Printer, Kincaid, 38; Judge, Boise, 22; Pros. Attorney, Powell, 23; State Senator, J. W. Watts, 10; Representatives, Lee Laughlin, 15, Al. Hussey, 13; Co. Judge, Ramsey (D.), 2; Sheriff, P. P. Gates, 25; Clerk, M. Redding, 7; Co. Treasurer, Jno. OREGON.

The annual meeting of the Christian Brotherhood of Oregon, will be held at Bethel, Polk county, on the 10th inst.

The Congregational Association of Oregon will meet at Albany on Thursday, the 16th inst., ministers and delegates attending will be passed by the P. T. Co. at half fare.

The Republicans have elected one candidate (Superintendent of Schools) in Jackson county by fifty majority,—that being an officer whom the Democrats seem to have no use for.

At the recent Commencement of Pacific University (Forest Grove) the graduating class consisting of Messrs. Frank L. Stott and A. R. Lindsley, received the degree of A. B., and the class of young ladies who graduated from the ladies' course consisting of Miss G. Brown, Miss P. I. Clarke, and Miss C. A. Neal received the degree of A. M. of M. S. The honorary degree of A. M. was conferred on Rev. Thomas Condon of Dalles, Rev. P. S. Knight of Salem, and W. Lair Hill, Esq., of Portland. The degree of D. D. was conferred on Rev. E. C. Anderson of Portland.

From Yaquina Bay the Statesman has the following: Mr. H. C. Sterling, late from the Bay, informs us that the Light House Surveying Steamer, Shubrick, came into Yaquina Bay last Tuesday and remained until Saturday, employed in the meanwhile in buoying the channel over the bar, and five miles up the bay. She came in on three-fourth tide, and found twenty feet of water. Times are lively over there. Works goes on, so that the schooner and saw mill are both verging towards completion. At Newport potatoes were in bloom and all vegetation was looking well. The little steamer had made one trip from Pioneer to Newport and back, and will do regular work hereafter.

The great "railroad issue" which was sprung just before the election, and which was expected to create a political revolution in this city and all the west side counties had a very poor run. Multnomah gives the largest majority for the Republicans which has been gained by any party in the county for six years. Washington, Yamhill and Benton all go Republican. Polk is the only west side county which the Democrats have carried, and that county was almost hopelessly Democratic from the first. The railroad fight in this county added not less than two hundred to our majority. If it could have spread over the State it would have told everywhere in one favor. The Herald has had much to say about an imaginary "boomerang railroad;" but that paper and its backers have found this great "railroad issue" a veritable boomerang, which has recoiled with stunning effect upon their own heads.

"J. Gaston, President," continues his statements in the Herald, in regard to west side railroad affairs. He charges us again with misrepresentation in having said that the Portland Astoria and McMinnville grant was accepted by parties connected with west side railway interests as the best that could be obtained, and tries to prove his charge by quoting from what Tom Fitch of Nevada has written to somebody, and by the still more uncertain statement of something which he says Jo. Smith says was said by Judge Williams to a Congressional Committee. Censure is also cast upon Williams for "stopping the grant at McMinnville." For the present it is sufficient to say that Mr. Gaston has, by his several statements, so frequently contradicted and utterly stultified himself in this matter that he has no case at all. His letter regarding the action of Williams in securing the passage of the Astoria bill is a complete answer to all that he is charging now. In order to show Mr. Gaston's double dealing in this matter it is only necessary to quote him against himself. But we apprehend that the public want no new information to enable them to understand the man who was at the head of that secret agreement concerning the west side road, which we published a few days ago. Mr. Gaston has an allegation about the "paid opposition" of this paper to the west side road. In those two words there are two falsehoods. We have not "opposed" that road and have not been "paid" to oppose it. Nobody wants it built more than we do. But we have about come to the conclusion, with many of the west side people who have been victimized by it, that it will never be built while J. Gaston, President, stands at the head of it.

The Herald says the Republicans went right into the market in this city on Monday and bought up Democrats just as if they had been so many "glass-eyed cayuse horses." It pains us to find that paper publishing such things about the eminently respectable party of which it is, or claims to be, the chief organ.

Dispatches received last evening state that Boise is certainly elected Judge in the Third District. Figures not given.

Through Cars.

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

Already the inquiry is made, how direct communication between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts may be promoted in the immediate future. Whatever time the party which leaves to-day may make, the practicability of crossing the continent without change of cars is beyond controversy. Why may not the opportunity be given to the general public at once? Why may not a through Boston and San Francisco line of cars be put on, one of which shall leave this city on days regularly announced? Suppose it begins with one car a week, others to be added as the demand increases? If one car on the day named will not take all, add a second, and as often as any given number of travellers are ready to engage a car, let it be at their service. We make the suggestion to railway managers, with the assurance that it would meet with hearty public appreciation. If any suppose the interest of the Pacific Coast, or in the wide region that separates us from it, is only temporary, the future will surely undeceive them. To the fortune-seeking multitude now here, it will continue to offer such prizes as will tempt them, while the number from across the sea who will find homes there is sure to exceed any estimates that have yet been made. Wherever you meet a tide of men in motion, whether from Canada, or Nova Scotia, or Europe, you will find a part of them on their way to the Pacific. And of those whose homes are and will remain here, there are few in fair circumstances who, with the facilities now offered, will not make the journey once in their lives. With natural beauties unexcelled, with every attraction for travellers which the world can afford, why should not Americans seek them first, and make them a part of their personal experience? Let the need, then, be met without unnecessary delay, without unnecessary pretension, with every regard for safety and substantial comfort, and there need be no fear that it will not be responded to.

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 9, 1870

CITY.

COMMON COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.—The regular weekly meeting of the Common Council was held in the Council Chamber last evening at the usual hour, Mayor Goldsmith presiding.

The following Councilmen were present: Messrs. Brock, Cree, Hopkins, Lewis and Porter.

The minutes of the last previous meeting were read and approved.

Petition of Wm. Gillihan to improve a certain line of property west of Park street was referred; it was not thought to be within the surveyed and established limits of the street for street improvements.

Petition of Dr. R. Glisan, for the use of a portion of First Street in improvements, was granted.

Remonstrance of Richard Brotherton against the improvement, as proposed, of Main street west to the center of 11th street, was referred.

Permits for improvements were granted to P. Baker and John Drew, and petition of J. W. Payne referred.

John Curran sends in for consideration of the Council, a communication as follows: "Your petitioner, John Curran, has been living on a lot between Clay and Columbia streets on 4th. The lot having changed owners the present purchaser gave me the house, on condition that it should be removed. And being without means Mr. Brown, the proprietor, undertook to remove the house for me. He removed the house on to the center of Fourth street on last Saturday, and there it remains at present. Being without money I cannot move it farther. Anything that Your Honorable Council could do to assist me in my present difficulty would be most gratefully remembered by your humble petitioner. Reference to the list of voters in the Oregon Precinct may show the reason for the house being left on the street."

The communication was referred, and the petitioner allowed ten days to remove the house.

Messrs. John Cowan, Halpenner, and others remonstrate against the improvement on Eighth street between Mill and Clay. The remonstrance was referred.

Several bills against the city presented by H. Myers, were audited, also bills as follows: Rosenberg & Barrett, $3 75; Phil Hornung, $2.

An ordinance authorizing a contract with the Portland Bridge Company for the erection of a bridge across the Wallamet river, was read first and second time, and referred back to Committee. The ordinance provides that it being inexpedient for the city of Portland, in its corporate capacity to undertake the building of a bridge, and the Portland Bridge Company having filed a petition asking to build, the Council will permit such company to erect, or cause to be erected such bridge, according to a detailed map of the river at the proposed site, and for a distance of one mile above and below the site. The bridge to be no obstruction to navigation, etc. The ordinance goes into details of the conditions, fixing rates of tolls, etc. In case the company fail to perform the conditions of this ordinance it forfeits all right and privileges granted by the same.

An ordinance providing for the time and manner of improving North First street, between A and B streets, according to the provisions of an ordinance relating to the improving of streets by planking and laying sidewalks to be completed by October 1st, 1870, passed under a suspension of the rules.

An ordinance to provide for the time and manner of improving Third and North Third streets, to be completed October 1st, 1870, by planking and laying sidewalks between College and G streets was passed.

Notice was authorized by resolution to be given that the Council propose improving Oak street, between Second and East Park street.

Proposals were authorized to be invited for the city printing, by the Auditor and Clerk.

A communication from the City Marshal, relative to the special police force, was received and referred to the Committee on Health and Police to report appropriation.

Councilman Hopkins tendered his resignation as a member from the Third ward, which was accepted and placed on file.

A resolution was passed amending a resolution passed at the last previous meeting, appointing judges of election to be held on the 20th for Councilmen, appointing for the First ward, Messrs. A. L. Lovejoy, Jos. Tucker, Wm. Dierdorff; and in the Second ward as follows, for judges, P. D. W. Hardenburg, O. Risley, O. B. [illegible], and directing that notice be given for the election of a Councilman in the Third ward in place of Councilman Hopkins, resigned.

Council adjourned.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER OF MINING STATISTICS.—The report of Mr. Raymond, on the mines of the Rocky Mountains, the inland basin and the Pacific slope, for the year 1869, is now in the hands of the Congressional printer, and awaits publication. Fully aware that the interest of such a document depends largely upon its prompt appearance, the Commissioner will spare no personal exertions to facilitate an early publication. The Commissioner's estimate of Bullion production for the year 1869 is as follows: California, $20,000,000; Nevada, $14,000,000; Oregon and Washington, $4,000,000; Idaho, $7,000,000; Montana, $12,000,000; Colorado and Wyoming, $4,000,000; New Mexico, $500,000; Arizona, $1,000,000; All other sources, $1,000,000. Total, $63,500,000. This result we cannot but regard as highly encouraging. It falls short of the product of 1868, it is true, some $8,000,000; but the loss to the placer-mining industry, occasioned by the excessive drought of last summer in northern California, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, would of itself have occasioned a much larger decrease. The steady augmentation of the product from quartz-mining has considerably counterbalanced this loss; and it is matter for special consideration, that the diminished placer yield is due to a temporary cause, while the increased quartz-yield is but the beginning of a new and prosperous era for that branch of industry. In Oregon, Idaho (except in the Owyhee country) and Montana, the auriferous and argentiferous veins have scarcely yet been opened. Yet there is no doubt that these will ultimately prove the true and permanent source of mineral wealth. We are more than ever convinced that placer and gravel deposits are secondary products from the decomposition of veins, and that consequently no region rich in alluvial gold will fail to contain auriferous lodes. But it is quite likely that in most cases the gold in gulches, banks and bars is concentrated, and so is easily obtained, and as long as placer mining flourishes rankly, wages will remain too high for profitable quartz mining. The gradual exhaustion of the richer diggings brings with it a two-fold blessing, sooner or later. It directs industry both to the veins and to the poorer placer deposits. Of the latter, there is a vast extent in the Pacific States, greater, we think, than the world is accustomed to think. It is the fashion to talk of the exhaustion of the placers, but the reduction of wages from say $3 50 to $2 per day would open up an area of placer ground as great as that now worked. In Oregon and Idaho this is emphatically the case. But the veins are the ultimate and best resource. Their product is increasing every year. They never have paid better on the average to the proprietors than during the year just passed, and they enter upon a new season under the best auspices.

LOOKING FOR A LOCATION.—Among those who have recently arrived here from the East, are a couple of retired merchants from Vermont, Messrs. Couch and Woodard who are looking for a location and home on the Pacific. They will leave for Walla Walla this morning to examine that valley and vicinity before deciding upon the locality in which to pitch their tents. They bring capital with them and intend to invest. In speaking of California they draw a contrast between its parched plains and hills, and our verdure covered valleys and mountains highly favorable to the latter. This is one of the most common things with those who have this year come out to see the Pacific coast. Everybody is delighted with our climate and the luxuriant growth of vegetables, fruit and shrubbery, to be seen on every hand.

PERSONAL.—We learn that Bishop Morris has gone to Walla Walla on a tour connected with church affairs and will preach at Walla Walla next Sunday.

Gov. Woods came down from Salem yesterday, and Gen. Palmer from Yamhill. Both of them appear to be in a good state of preservation, notwithstanding the wear and tear of the late canvass.

Gov. Salomon and party are here on their way home to Olympia. The Governor will in a few days start for Chicago to bring his family out to reside at Olympia.

DOMESTICATED GAME.—Mr. A. H. Johnson, of this city, has kept on his farm, a few miles out, for a year or two, a couple of elk which have been handled as contentedly as possible with his cattle. Yesterday he drove them down to the city with a band of steers. They are two and three years old, fat and sleek and very heavy—would probably average 500 lbs each.

Election Excitement.—The excitement over the election returns, raged with more force yesterday than even on the day before A few Republicans were the only people we met who were not anxious to hear further news There was some betting and a power of bluffing on majorities but the Republicans were so well satisfied that the whole game is staked on them in Eastern Oregon that they did not manifest much eagerness to bite at any of the gilded hooks

The Weather The clerk of the weather is still on it Yesterday was quite as warm thermometrically speaking, as the day before though a slight breeze in the afternoon made it a little more easily endurable The telegraph reports that at Walla Walla the thermometer reached seventy six degrees At Umatilla it was eighty degrees and at Dalles and every other point heard from the weather was extremely hot

This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of it consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and put on their guard against this practice.

And the [illegible] by the brook [illegible] as they stood
When fal[l] [illegible]
And the [illegible] of their smile was gone [illegible] glade and glen

And now when comes the [illegible] mild day as now such days do come
To call the squirrel and the bee from out their winter home
When the sound of bursting bud and heard and the woods are very still
And twinkle in the sunny light the waters of the rill
The South wind searches for the flowers whose [illegible] to [illegible]

And then I look at one whose [illegible] beauty glide

Our Precious Lunatic

BY MARK TWAIN

(From the Buffalo Express May 14

NEW YORK May 10

The Richardson McFarland jury had been out one hour and fifteen minutes A breathless silence brooded over court and auditory—a silence and a stillness so absolute notwithstanding the vast multitude of human beings packed together there that when some one far away among the throng under the northeast balcony cleared his throat with a smothered little cough it startled everybody uncomfortably so distinctly did it grate upon the pulseless air At that imposing moment the bang of a door was heard then the shuffle of approaching feet, and then a sort of surging and swaying disorder among the heads near the entrance from the jury room told that the Twelve were coming Presently all was still again, and the foreman of the jury rose and said

YOUR HONOR AND GENTLEMEN We the jury charged with the duty of determining whether the prisoner at the bar Daniel McFarland has been guilty of murder in taking by surprise an unarmed man and shooting him to death or whether the said prisoner is simply afflicted with a sad but irresponsible insanity which at times can be cheered only by violent entertainment with firearms do find as follows namely

That the prisoner Daniel McFarland is insane, as above described because

1 His great-grandfather s step father was tainted with insanity, and frequently killed people who were distasteful to him Hence, insanity is hereditary in the family

2 For nine years the prisoner at the bar did not adequately support his family Strong circumstantial evidence of insanity

3 For nine years he made his home as a general thing, a poor house sometimes (but very rarely) a cheery happy habitation frequently the den of a beery driveling stupified animal but never as far as ascertained the abiding place of a gentleman These be evidences of insanity

4 He once took his young unmarried sister-in-law to the museum while there his hereditary insanity came upon him and to such a degree that he hiccupped and staggered and afterward, on the way home even made love to the young girl he was protecting These are the acts of a person not in his right mind

5 For a good while his sufferings were so great that he had to submit to the inconvenience of having his wife give public readings for the family support and at times when he handed these shameful earnings to the barkeeper his haughty soul was so torn with anguish that he could hardly stand without leaning up against something At such times he has been known to shed tears into his sustenance until it was diluted to utter inefficiency Inattention of this nature is not the act of a Democrat unafflicted in mind

6 He never spared expense in making his wife comfortable during her occasional confinements Her father is able to testify to this There was always an element of unsoundness about the prisoner s generosities that is very suggestive at this time and before this court.

7 Two years ago the prisoner came fearlessly up behind Richardson in the dark and shot him in the leg The prisoner s brave and protracted defiance of an adversity that for years had left him little to depend upon for his support but a wife who sometimes earned scarcely anything for weeks at a time is evidence that he would have appeared in front of Richardson and shot him in the stomach if he had not been insane at the time of the shooting

8 Fourteen months ago the prisoner told Archibald Smith that he was going to kill Richardson This is insanity

9 Twelve months ago he told Marshal P Jones that he was going to kill Richardson Insanity

10 Nine months ago he was lurking about Richardson s home in New Jersey and said he was going to kill the said Richardson Insanity

11 Seven months ago he showed a pistol to Seth Brown and said that that was for Richardson The said Brown testified at that time it seemed plain that there was something the matter with McFarland for he crossed the street diagonally nine times in fifty yards apparently without any settled reason for doing so and finally fell in the gutter and went to sleep He remarked at the time that McFarland "acted strange"—believed he was insane Upon hearing Brown s evidence, John W Galen M D affirmed at once that McFarland was insane

12 Five months ago McFarland showed his customary pistol in his customary way to his bed fellow Charles A Dana, and told him he was going to kill Richardson the first time an opportunity offered Evidence of insanity

13 Five months and two weeks ago McFarland asked John M [illegible] the time of day and turned and walked rapidly away [illegible] for an answer Almost indubitable evidence of insanity And—

14 It is remarkable that exactly [illegible] after this circumstance the prisoner Daniel McFarland confronted Albert D Richardson suddenly and without warning shot him dead This is manifest insanity Everything we know of the prisoner goes to show that if he had been sane at the time he would have shot his victim from behind

15 There is an absolute overwhelming mass of testimony to show that an hour before the shooting, McFarland was anxious and uneasy and that ten minutes after it he was excited This the accumulating conjectures and evidences of insanity [illegible] in this sublime and [illegible] proof of it Therefore

Your Honor and Gentlemen We the jury pronounce the said Daniel McFarland innocent of murder but calamitously insane

The scene that ensued almost defies description Hats handkerchiefs and bonnets were frantically waved above the massed heads in the court room, and three tremendous cheers and a tiger told where the sympathies of court and people were Then a hundred pursed lips were advanced to kiss the liberated prisoner and many a hand thrust out to give him the congratulatory shake but presto! with a maniac s own quickness and ardor [illegible] fury the lunatic assassin of R[ichardson] fell upon his friends with teeth and nails [illegible] and the un[illegible] [illegible] rent and sundered bodies till nearly a hundred lives were reduced to mere [illegible] crumbling rags was like nothing in this world but the [illegible] tear[ing] roaring [illegible] faster [illegible] and whirled [illegible]

In [illegible] said that with [illegible] McFarland killed [illegible] persons [illegible] the City Hall [illegible] carrying away and casting [illegible] marble columns fifty [illegible] two [illegible] each But he was finally captured and is [illegible] [illegible] Editor Express

But the really curious part of this whole matter is yet to be told And that is that McFarland s most intimate friend believe that the very first time it ever occurred to him that the insanity plea was not a mere political pretense was when that verdict came in They think that the startling thought burst upon him then that if twelve good and true men able to comprehend all the baseness of perjury proclaimed under oath that he was a lunatic there was no gainsaying such evidence and he was unquestionably insane!

Possibly that was really the way of it It is dreadful to think that maybe the most awful calamity that can befall a man namely, loss of reason precipitated upon this poor prisoner by a jury that could have hanged him instead and so done him a mercy and his country a service MARK TWAIN

POSTSCRIPT LATER

MAY 11 I do not expect anybody to believe so astonishing a thing, and yet it is the solemn truth that instead of instantly sending this dangerous lunatic to the insane asylum (which I naturally supposed they would do and so I prematurely said they had) the court has actually SET HIM AT LIBERTY Comment is unnecessary M T
